ABOUT THIS SAMPLE

What you're about to read

A real Relationship Codex, in miniature.

The Relationship Codex reads two birth charts side by side: how each of you loves, works and meets the world, what happens when your charts touch, the karmic thread between you, and the seasons ahead. It is written for any bond that matters. That includes a marriage or a romance, and it equally includes a business partnership, a creative collaboration, a close friendship, or a bond within a family.

You bring three questions about the relationship, and the Codex is built around them. A couple might ask whether their marriage is built to last, where to make their home, or how to bring back the spark. Business partners might ask how to share the roles, when to launch, or how to move through a disagreement. Every answer comes from both charts at once.

This sample comes from a real 78-page Codex, written for a married couple who share the same rising sign. What follows are excerpts: the opening letter, how to read the Codex, the free will page, your bond at a glance, two chapters on the bond, the karmic thread of their past lives together, one of their questions answered, a stretch of their timing, a portrait of the marriage fully realized, and their keys.

EVERY RELATIONSHIP CODEX INCLUDES

- Each of you, in love and in partnership: your rising signs, Moons, Venus and Mars, and the partner your soul seeks
- The bond: how your Moons meet, the fire between you, where you land in each other's charts, and the marriage of souls
- The karmic thread: your past lives together, and what this life is for
- Your three questions: answered from both charts, with clear windows of timing
- Your two clocks: both life chapters side by side, and a year-by-year calendar for the decade ahead
- Completion: practices for two, a portrait of your bond fully realized, a closing letter, and your keys

Pages in this sample are reproduced as they appear in the full Codex, so their page numbers jump where sections have been skipped. Names and birth details are kept private.

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

A Letter Before You Begin

Dear one,

You came to this Codex with questions about a marriage you have built for seventeen years: whether it is built to last, whether to stay in your home or begin again somewhere new, how to care for your health together as you age, where to travel, and the one you asked most quietly, whether the two of you have walked together before. You told me you feel Greece or Rome, that he was a protector, a guard, a soldier, and that you were an oracle, a priestess, a channel.

So I laid both of your charts side by side, and I want to tell you the ending first, so you can read the rest with your shoulders down.

You were born under the same sky. Both of you have Leo rising, in the same star, Magha, in the same quarter of that star, less than two degrees apart. Your navamshas, the charts of marriage, rise in the same sign, and your soul planets land in the same sign there. Charts this alike are rare. Two lions, one throne, one pride.

About whether it is built to last: his Saturn, the planet of loyalty and time, sits in its own sign in his house of marriage, twenty-four minutes of arc from your descendant, the doorway of partnership in your chart. It is one of the strongest signatures of an enduring marriage I know. He arrived exactly at the door of your 7th house, and he stays.

About your past lives: your intuition and your charts agree. His South Node, the memory of the soul, rests in your house of home and sanctuary, in the star of the protector. Your South Node rests in his house of the temple, in the serpent star of the oracle. He guarded the sanctuary. You spoke from inside it.

About home, health and travel, the charts give clear seasons for each, and I'll walk you through every one. Everything in these pages is potential: a chart describes the weather, and the two of you decide what to build in it.

Read slowly. Read some of it aloud to him, especially the chapters about the temple.

With love and infinite light,

Two lions, one throne, and a promise older than this life.

How to Read This Codex

The charts, the tools, and the language of two

A relationship reading is a conversation between two charts. Some of what follows is about each of you alone, because the way each of you loves, works and meets the world is the raw material of the bond. Most of it is about what happens when the two charts are laid on top of each other.

THE TWO CHARTS FOR EACH OF YOU

The D1, or Rasi chart, is the birth chart: temperament, body, work, money and home. The D9, or Navamsha, is the chart of dharma and of marriage. It describes the inner life of the partnership: what the bond is for, and who each of you ripens into inside it.

THE TOOLS OF COMPARISON

- Guna Milan. The traditional eight-part comparison of your two Moons, scored out of 36. It describes emotional ease and how daily life together feels.
- The Manglik check. How Mars, the planet of heat and drive, sits in each chart, and how the fire is shared between you.
- Overlays. Where each of your planets lands in the other's houses.
- The karakas. The soul planet, the Atmakaraka, and the planet of the partner, the Darakaraka, from the Jaimini tradition.
- The Upapada. A calculated point that describes the marriage itself: how it holds, and what sustains it.
- The nodes. Ketu, the South Gate, is what the soul has already lived. Rahu, the North Gate, is what it came here to grow toward.
- Dashas and transits. Your personal planetary chapters, and the sky moving over your charts. Good timing comes from where the two agree.

HOW EACH CHAPTER IS BUILT

Each chapter opens with its placements and closes with three things: The Short Version, for the busy day; a Reflection, to sit with alone or together; and a Key to Carry, one sentence to keep in your pocket.

A GENTLE NOTE

The chapters about health describe astrological seasons and sources of strength. Your own doctors are the right guides for your care, alongside this celestial encouragement. Timing is calculated in the sidereal zodiac with Lahiri ayanamsha, and dates read best as seasons.

The Chart and Your Free Will

What the stars describe, and what only the two of you decide

There's an old saying in Jyotish: the stars impel; they do not compel. Before you read any further, hold that sentence close, because everything in this Codex rests on it.

A chart is a map of the sky at the moment you took your first breath. It describes the weather you were born into: your temperament, your gifts, the places where life tends to press on you, and the seasons when certain themes rise to the surface. What you do with all of it is yours. The map shows the terrain. You and your husband choose the road.

WHAT THE CHART CAN SHOW

- Tendencies. His Saturn in the 7th describes a husband who tends to show love through steadiness. How he expresses it is his choice.
- Seasons. A window to move, a season for travel, a year that asks for rest. They make some things easier; your choices make them happen.
- Patterns between you. Where your planets land in each other's charts explains why certain feelings arise between you so reliably. Understanding a pattern is the first step to shaping it.

WHAT ONLY THE TWO OF YOU DECIDE

- Where you live, and when you move.
- How you care for your bodies, day by day.
- Where you travel, and what you bring home from it.
- How much of this Codex you take to heart, and what you set aside.

KARMA AND CHOICE

In the Vedic tradition, karma has layers. Some of it is already in motion, like an arrow that has left the bow: the circumstances you were born into. Most of it is still being made, with every choice, every conversation, every act of courage or kindness. The tradition calls this kriyamana karma, the karma of what you do now. It's the most powerful kind, because it is yours to shape.

So read every supported season as a tailwind, and every challenging placement as a place to bring awareness. Take what rings true, talk it over together, and keep what fits.

The stars impel; they do not compel. The choosing is yours.

PART ONE

Two Lions

YOU IN LOVE · HE IN LOVE · TWO LIONS, ONE PRIDE

Before we look at the bond, we look at the two people who make it: how each of you loves, and why you fit together the way you do.

SAMPLE

THREE

Two Lions, One Pride

Leo rising in Magha for both · the same navamsha rising · the same Karakamsha

Most couples are a meeting of two different skies. Yours is a meeting of two lions born under the same one.

THE THRONE OF MAGHA

Both of you were born with Leo rising, in Magha, the star of the throne. Your Ascendant sits at 9°42′ Leo; his sits at 7°55′. Both fall in the third quarter of Magha. Magha is ruled by the Pitris, the ancestors, and its symbol is the royal throne. Magha people carry dignity, loyalty to their lineage, and an instinct to protect what is theirs. They lead naturally, and they keep faith with the people who came before them.

When two people share a rising sign this closely, they meet life from the same window. You see the same room when you walk into it. You want the same things from a home: warmth, beauty, a place to gather the people you love. You recognize each other's pride, and you know exactly where it lives.

THE SAME SIGN IN THE MARRIAGE CHART

In the navamsha, the chart of marriage and dharma, both of you rise in Gemini, the sign of conversation, wit and companionship. Your navamsha 7th houses fall in the same sign, Sagittarius, and in both charts its ruler, Jupiter, sits in Libra in the 5th house of joy and romance. You carry the same picture of what marriage is for: a long conversation, shared learning, and delight.

THE SAME SOUL ADDRESS

Your soul planet is Mercury; his is the Moon. In the navamsha, both land in Leo. This sign is called the Karakamsha, and it describes what the soul came here to do. You share it. Both of your souls came to lead with the heart, to create, and to be loved for their warmth.

SAMPLE

TWO SOUL PLANETS IN CONVERSATION

Back in the birth charts, his Moon sits at 25°35′ Taurus and your Mercury at 25°49′ Virgo: fourteen minutes of arc from an exact trine, the most harmonious angle in astrology. His soul planet and yours speak to each other in earth: practical, sensual and steady. He feels; you give it words. You think; he gives it ground.

THE GIFT AND THE GROWING EDGE

Two lions share great warmth and a little pride. When both of you are certain, the room can grow quiet. The gift of the shared throne is that each of you understands exactly what the other needs to hear: respect first, then the truth. Offer it in that order and you'll find each other quickly.

THE SHORT VERSION

You were born under the same sky: Leo rising in the same quarter of Magha, the same navamsha rising, the same soul address. You meet life from the same window, and your soul planets speak to each other in a near-perfect trine. Lead with respect, then truth, and two lions become one pride.

REFLECTION

Where do I recognize my own pride in him, and his in me?

What does our home look like when both of us feel like royalty in it?

KEY TO CARRY

We meet life from the same window, and we lead our pride together.

SEVEN

The Marriage of Souls

His Saturn on your descendant · Shasha yoga · your Upapada in Taurus · two destiny points

Some charts describe a love affair. Yours describes a marriage: a vow with weight, built to carry two lives for a long time.

HIS SATURN AT YOUR DOOR

In your chart, the 7th house of marriage is Aquarius, and its doorway, your descendant, falls at 9°42′ Aquarius. His Saturn sits at 9°18′ Aquarius: twenty-four minutes of arc, less than half a degree. Saturn is the planet of time, loyalty and promises kept. When a partner's Saturn sits on your descendant, the classical reading is a marriage built for the long haul, with a partner who arrives carrying a sense of duty to you and keeps it.

In his own chart, that same Saturn sits in his 7th house, in its own sign. Saturn in its own sign in an angular house forms Shasha yoga, one of the five great yogas of classical astrology. In his navamsha, Saturn sits in the 7th house again. Twice over, his chart describes a husband who stays, who carries weight, and who shows his love through steadiness.

YOUR UPAPADA: THE MARRIAGE ITSELF

The Upapada describes the marriage as its own living thing. Yours falls in Taurus, the sign of the bull: steady, sensual, loyal, built on comfort and shared resources. His Moon, his heart and his soul planet, lives in Taurus, exalted, and so does your Saturn. The sign of your marriage holds his heart. The sign after your Upapada shows what sustains a marriage, and it holds your Moon. What keeps this marriage alive is your own heart, fed by conversation.

SAMPLE

His Upapada falls in Pisces, the sign of devotion and the sea. Your Jupiter, the planet of grace, casts its gaze onto it. You bless his idea of marriage simply by being in it.

TWO DESTINY POINTS

Each of your Bhrigu Bindus, the karmic destiny points, falls in the sign of the other's Jupiter. Yours sits in Aries, where his Jupiter lives; his sits in Scorpio, where yours lives. In karmic language, each of you is the place where the other's grace arrives.

THE SHORT VERSION

His Saturn sits on your descendant, within half a degree, in its own sign and in his own house of marriage: a vow with roots. Your Upapada holds his heart, and your heart sustains the marriage. Each of your destiny points rests in the sign of the other's grace.

REFLECTION

How has his steadiness shown up for me in the hardest seasons?

What does our marriage need from my heart this year?

KEY TO CARRY

He arrived at the door of my 7th house, and he stays.

PART THREE

The Karmic Thread

THE KARMIC THREAD · THE ORACLE AND THE GUARDIAN · THE HEALING TEMPLE · WHAT THIS LIFE IS FOR

Your question about past lives: have we walked together before, and who were we?

SAMPLE

EIGHT

The Karmic Thread

His South Node in your 4th · your South Node in his 12th · two Venuses, two memories · the North Nodes

When two people feel, almost at once, that they've known each other a long time, Jyotish looks for the thread. A chart shows where two souls recognize each other: the places where one person's karmic points land in the other's chart. You told me you feel Greece or Rome, a protector and an oracle. Hold what follows as a story to keep with an open hand. I think you'll find your charts tell it in their own language.

THE SOUTH NODE: WHAT THE SOUL REMEMBERS

Ketu, the South Node, marks what a soul has already lived and mastered. When one person's Ketu falls in another person's chart, the classical reading is recognition: I've known this part of your life before.

HIS SOUTH NODE IN YOUR HOUSE OF SANCTUARY

His Ketu sits at 29°21′ Scorpio, in Jyeshtha, with his Bhrigu Bindu close beside it at 27°28′. In your chart, Scorpio is the 4th house: the home, the land, the sanctuary, the protected inner rooms of a life. Your Jupiter, the planet of the sacred, lives in that same sign.

Jyeshtha is the star of the eldest, ruled by Indra, king of the gods and bearer of the thunderbolt. Its symbol is the protective talisman. Jyeshtha souls are guardians by nature: the senior guard, the one who stands at the gate and takes responsibility for everyone inside. His Ketu rests in the very last degree of Scorpio, a gandanta point where water meets fire: a soul completing a long chapter of service.

The picture it suggests: he stood guard at a sacred house, a sanctuary where your wisdom lived. He kept the gate. Both of your Saturns cast their gaze onto Scorpio, which adds the weight of a vow kept over a long time.

SAMPLE

YOUR SOUTH NODE IN HIS HOUSE OF THE TEMPLE

Your Ketu sits at 18°48′ Cancer, in Ashlesha. In his chart, Cancer is the 12th house: the house of temples and retreats, the inner sanctum, dreams, and what lies beyond the veil.

Ashlesha is the serpent star, ruled by the Nagas, the keepers of hidden wisdom. In ancient Greece, the most famous oracle of all, at Delphi, was called the Pythia, named for the great serpent Python who once guarded that sacred ground. The healing temples of Asclepius kept sacred serpents too. A soul whose South Node lives in Ashlesha, in the house of the temple, remembers the inner sanctum, the trance, and the voice that speaks for something larger than itself. That is your soul's memory, held inside his chart.

THE ORACLE AND THE GUARDIAN

Put the two together and the story is clear and tender. You spoke from inside the temple. He guarded its door. Your memory lives in his 12th house, the sanctum; his memory lives in your 4th house, the protected home. In this life he still guards your home, and you still bring the sacred into his.

TWO VENUSES, TWO MEMORIES

In the navamsha, your Venus, the planet of love, sits in Scorpio: the sign of his South Node. His navamsha Venus sits in Cancer: the sign of yours. In the deepest chart of marriage, each of you loves exactly what you remember in the other. You fell for the guardian. He fell for the oracle.

THE WEDDING SKY

On your wedding day, Saturn, the planet of vows, stood in Leo, across both of your rising signs. It came within months of your nodal return, when the nodes came home to their birth positions in your chart: a classical signature of a soul meeting its destiny. The old vow was renewed under the sign you share.

SAMPLE

THE NORTH NODES: WHAT THIS LIFE IS FOR

Your Rahu sits in Capricorn, the 6th house in both of your charts: the house of daily routines, health, service and care. His Rahu sits in Taurus, the 10th house for both of you: public work and purpose in the world, beside his exalted Moon.

Read together, your souls came to bring the temple's wisdom into ordinary life: into daily routines that keep two bodies well, which is part of why your question about health matters so much now, and into work that is seen. In the old life, the sacred was kept behind walls. In this one, you get to live it in your kitchen, your mornings and your work.

HOW TO HONOR THE THREAD

- Thank the old bond. The loyalty and safety between you were earned over a long time. Let yourselves feel grateful for them.
- Let the guardian rest. Tell him when the gate can open. A guardian also needs his evenings off.
- Bring the temple home. A small altar, candlelight, reading aloud to each other: the sanctuary you both remember can live in your house now.

THE SHORT VERSION

His South Node rests in your house of home and sanctuary, in the star of the protector; yours rests in his house of the temple, in the serpent star of the oracle. Each navamsha Venus sits in the other's South Node sign. The past was the temple and its gate. This life asks you to bring that wisdom into daily life and into the world.

REFLECTION

When have I felt that I already knew him, long before we met?

Where in our home can the sanctuary live now?

KEY TO CARRY

He kept the gate and I kept the flame; now we keep a home together.

FOURTEEN

Built to Last

Saturn on the descendant · matched fires · the same marriage chart · two clocks in step

Your first question was the simplest and the biggest: is this marriage stable, and is it built to last? Here's the answer first, and then the reasons. Yes, and it was built to last from the beginning.

FIVE SIGNATURES OF A LASTING BOND

1. A partner's Saturn on your descendant, within twenty-four minutes of arc: loyalty that arrived at the door of your marriage and stays there.
2. Shasha yoga in his house of marriage, in the birth chart and again in the navamsha: a husband built for duty and devotion.
3. Matched fires. Mars sits in a Manglik position in both charts, and both are cancelled: yours by an exalted Mars in Capricorn, his by Mars in Virgo in the 2nd house, a classical exception. Each of you holds an equal share of the heat.
4. The same idea of marriage. The same navamsha rising, the same navamsha 7th house, and its ruler in the same place in both charts.
5. A strong emotional match. 23.5 of 36 in Guna Milan, with full marks for Nadi, the measure of health and constitution, and high scores for temperament and for the friendship of your Moon lords.

WHERE THE WORK LIVES

Bhakoot, the measure of emotional and material flow, scores lightly, because your Moons sit one sign apart. Classical texts cancel this when the two Moon lords are friends, and Mercury and Venus are close friends. In daily life it describes two people who handle money and feelings at different speeds: he steadies, you circulate. Name the speed out loud and you'll meet in the middle.

SAMPLE

YOUR CLOCKS IN STEP

From April 2027 to May 2028, both of you live in a Venus sub-period at the same time: a season of beauty, pleasure and a sweeter rhythm at home. After that, your sub-periods run in the same planetary order for the next decade, his a year or two after yours. Two clocks keeping time together are among the quietest and strongest signs of endurance.

THE SEASONS THAT ASK FOR TENDERNESS

Saturn moves through Pisces, your shared 8th house, until February 2028. His Sade Sati, Saturn's seven-year passage over his Moon, begins in June 2027; yours begins in August 2029. These are seasons of patience and simpler living. Long marriages are made in seasons like these. Meet them gently and together, and they deepen the bond.

THE SHORT VERSION

Yes. A partner's Saturn on your descendant, Shasha yoga, matched fires, the same marriage chart and a strong emotional match all describe a bond built to last. Your clocks keep time together for a decade. The Saturn seasons ahead ask for patience, and they deepen what you've built.

REFLECTION

What have we already weathered that proves how strong this is?

What would make the next seventeen years even sweeter?

KEY TO CARRY

We were built to last, and we choose it again each season.

NINETEEN

The Years Ahead, 2027–2036

A year-by-year calendar for the two of you

Here's your shared decade, year by year. Each year has a theme and a question to ask of it. Dates come from your dashas and from the transits of Jupiter, Saturn, Rahu and Mars in the sidereal zodiac. Read them as seasons.

2026, THE CLOSING WEEKS · THE DOOR CLEARS

On December 6, Rahu leaves Aquarius, your shared 7th house, where it has stirred the marriage for eighteen months, and Ketu leaves your shared rising sign. Saturn turns direct on December 11 in Pisces, your shared 8th house. Ask of these weeks: rest, and let the air settle between you.

2027 · HOME, HEART AND THE OPEN ROAD

Jupiter moves through Cancer, your shared 12th house, from January 25 to June 26, and casts its gaze onto your 4th house of home: the season to refresh the house you love. Mars is retrograde from January 10 to April 1 across your rising sign: slow the pace and review plans. On April 4 he enters his Venus sub-period, and the two of you share a double Venus season until May 2028. Saturn steps into Aries, your shared 9th house of travel and faith, from June 2 to October 21: your first travel window, open through November. His Sade Sati begins with it, a seven-year season of simpler living and inner strength. Jupiter returns to Leo on June 26 and crosses both of your rising degrees in August. In July, Rahu returns to its birth position in your chart. Ask of the year: refresh the nest, then take the trip.

SAMPLE

2028 · THE ROAD AND THE HEART

Saturn settles into Aries, your shared 9th house, on February 23 and stays into 2030: two years that favor pilgrimage, study, teachers and long journeys. Jupiter returns to Leo from February 29 to July 24, a second blessing on both of you, and spring is your second travel window. Venus is retrograde from May 12 to June 24 in Taurus, your shared 10th house and the sign of your Upapada: a season to revisit what you love about the life you've built. On May 19 you begin your Sun sub-period. On June 24, Rahu moves into Sagittarius, your shared 5th house of romance and play, until January 2030. Jupiter enters Virgo, your shared 2nd house of family and savings, in late July. Ask of the year: go somewhere old and sacred, and fall for each other again.

The calendar continues, year by year, through 2036: the home window from late 2029, its peak from September 2030 to October 2031, the care seasons, and the pilgrimage years of the mid-2030s.

KEY TO CARRY

TWENTY-ONE

A Portrait of Your Marriage

Fully realized

Let me show you what all of this looks like when it's lived well: a portrait of what these two charts make possible.

It's a morning in early autumn, in a year soon to come. The light comes in low across a kitchen you chose together, in a home that fits the life you have now. He's already up. He always is. He's made the coffee, checked the doors, and stepped outside to look at the sky, the way guardians do.

You come down slowly. Your body feels strong and cared for: the walks, the early nights, the check-ups kept on the calendar like sacred appointments. On a shelf by the window sits a small altar you built after the trip to Greece, a stone from Delphi beside a candle. Sometimes you read to him from your notebook, and he listens the way he always has, as though he heard your voice in another room, long ago.

There's a map open on the counter. You're planning the next journey.

You still disagree now and then, two lions in one house. You find each other quickly, because you both know the order: respect first, then the truth.

Seventeen years became twenty-five, and twenty-five keeps becoming more. The vow you made under a Leo sky still holds, and it feels lighter every year, because both of you keep choosing it.

Two lions, one home, and a love older than this life.
